

from Trajectory

We were young once and beautiful, wandering loose as stones—Jed loping along beside me, the beret he loved like a lopsided lily pad plopped on his head. We're lost, I'd say as we drifted from city to city. We're free . . .